List of Scriptures Regarding Salvation in Hell (New Testament)

There are differences in the numbering of the verses in different translations of the Holy Bible. The references here refer to the Authorized King James numbering. The variation in numbering of verses between this translation and the Douay-Rheims is much less in the New Testament than in the Old. I encountered only 11 variations in the scriptures that I have highlighted and these varied by only one.

The frequency of variance in the Old Testament is much greater but the vast majority of instances occur in the Psalms. Chapters that the translators decided were in acrostic form (alphabetical poems) were joined together as one. Chapter numbering diverges at Psalm 9 where a psalm thought to be in acrostic form (alphabetical) is listed as 9A and 9B in the Douay version. This occurs again at Psalm 113 and Psalm 146 where the Vulgate and Greek manuscripts listed the 2 consecutive psalms as one. The chapter numbers converge again at Psalm 148. This is hardly a foundation for doctrinal contention but it is a situation that could easily cause misunderstanding.
